It is an easy change from Gates to Bates.

Italy should keep up its spirits and keep down its war spirit.

Silence does not always give assent—in the Vermont legislature.

The weather let go for a short time just to get another bulldog grip.

By good rights it ought to be Speaker Ten Weeks, or such a matter.

What is Alsace for the French is not Alsace for the Germans—maybe!

Great Britain realizes that a soft answer turneth away Uncle Sam's wrath.

Revision downward is a satisfactory course in the case of the Rutland fair debt.

It was a short way to Winnipeg for that missing paymaster at Fort Ethan Allen.

"Safety first" is not a worn-out slogan in New York but simply relegated to the back shelf before use.

The New York auto show doesn't indicate any depression unless it is in the pocketbook after the cars are purchased.

A number of potential heroes were unmade in New York's subway horror, while at the same time, happily, a few were made.

By a curious slip of the type, a contemporary remarked last evening "In regard to the courts he said that he acted on anonymous advice of the supreme court."

Some of those war pictures, we suspect, bear the earmarks of the "movie" makeup; but we may be wrong in the suspicion.

The Maine legislature is electing a secretary of state when the voters should have been permitted to do it at the recent state election.

The new state highway commissioner has a road pretty well mapped out for him right at the start of his official career. If he follows it he cannot get far off the right track.

The New York policeman who stood on a sidewalk grating and refused to allow suffocating people in the subway to escape to the street ought to be elevated—by somebody's boot.

It has been customary to use the expression "in Dutch" to describe the condition of those who find themselves in difficult positions. But that expression is out of date; it is now proper to say "in Belgian."

The wind whistled when it blew a freight car in front of an express train at Middlebury; and still there was a wreck. Perhaps we would better put our trust in firm brakes rather than whistles, especially wind whistles.

It's just sport to fit 'em out here for their winter sports.

Prices reasonable, quality of goods above suspicion and money back if anything goes wrong.

Mackinaws, rich in color, warm and wooley.

Prices, $5 to $12.50.

Sweaters, all the improved models, $1 to $7.50.

Overcoats, just as big a variety from which to select as in the grown-up department.

These rough, Scotch, fuzzy fabrics, knee length, $10.

Loose back, raglan shoulder coats, at $10 and $15.

Regular double-breasted, long storm coats, $20.

Raincoats, $10, $15 and $20.

Everything right.

THE STATE OF GOVERNOR GATES' ADMINISTRATION.

The administration of Governor Gates starts off smoothly and with evidence that among the officials thus far elected or appointed there is likely to be a spirit of co-operation that presages successful performance. In his address to the legislature yesterday the chief executive purposely refrained from making any marked recommendations, preferring rather to let the address serve more as a vehicle for getting acquainted, so to speak, with the legislative branch of the government; and, if we mistake not, he attained his purpose in that respect. The legislators found that in Governor Gates the state has an executive who is likely to be willing to hear both sides of the case, who is not self-willed to the exclusion of the wishes of the people of the commonwealth, who is ready to admit that he is new to the game of governing the state and, therefore, must feel his way to a certain extent, who is deeply conscious of the significance of the oath he has taken to serve the state to the best of his ability and who will do his utmost to serve the state faithfully and efficiently. It is evident, moreover, by Governor Gates' address that he recognizes the constitutional limitations imposed on the executive, as well as on the legislative and judicial branches of the government and is anxious to abide by those limitations, while at the same time inviting reasonable concert of efforts among the three branches. By assuming this position at the outset of his gubernatorial career, Governor Gates is assured of the hearty support and co-operation of all the people of the commonwealth without regard to lines of demarcation built up because of variance of political beliefs. Evidently the executive wishes to be governor of the whole state, not of any particular party or section, and in proof of that wish he has tolerance of all parties. The Times expects to see that he will be governor of the whole state.

CURRENT COMMENT

Speaker Weeks' Promise.

The assurance from Speaker John E. Weeks, upon the occasion of his election Wednesday to preside over the Vermont House of Representatives, that he would co-operate in every effort to make the session efficient and economical, was only to have been expected. The people of Vermont have every reason to have full confidence that insofar as he possibly can, Speaker Weeks will carry out his promises to the letter.—Rutland News.

ANNOUNCEMENT

GRAND OPENING

SHEA'S SHOE STORE

131 North Main Street

MONDAY, JANUARY 11, 1915

FORMERLY KNOWN AS THE BARRE SHOE CO.

On this date I will throw open the doors of this store for inspection to the public of Barre and surrounding towns to visit us and to carefully inspect our new line of Men's, Women's and Children's Shoes and compare them, both in quality and price, with shoes bought elsewhere. This past week I spent in Boston selecting a new line of shoes that I am now satisfied are the best that money can buy, and hope to have the pleasure next Monday evening of showing this fine line of the newest and up-to-date styles in our shoe stock to our many visitors.

I have taken out of stock six pairs of my best shoes and will give them away on my opening night. A card presented to each person visiting our store will have a number plainly written on it.

A local business man will draw the numbers from the contest box, and those holding the winning numbers will find their names printed in our ad. the following Friday.

Watch for the big opening, Monday, Jan. 11, 1915.

Yours very truly,

FRANK J. SHEA
